Asset reference: the fourteen asset types

What each asset is, how to set it up, and the best practice. Assets are free to add; a click on an asset costs a normal click. Google shows an asset only when it predicts it helps. Add them in the ad step, or later under Campaigns, Assets, + (or Create, then Asset), at the account, campaign or ad group level: the most specific level is used. Checked against Google Ads Help.

Asset	What it is	Set it up	Best practice
1 Business information	Your business name and logo on the ad. With none, a globe icon and the display URL.	Needs access: Advertiser verification and Search spend in the last 28 days; the name matches the verified name or domain. Account or campaign level.	One name and logo per domain; a campaign-level one wins.
2 Sitelinks	Extra links to specific pages, under the ad. Up to 6 on desktop, 8 on mobile.	Sitelink text (25 characters), two description lines, the URL. Account, campaign or ad group.	At least 4 with descriptions; 6 in busy campaigns. Ticks the ad strength checklist's 'Add more sitelinks'.
3 Callouts	Short, non-clickable facts about offers and details.	+, Callout, the text (25 characters). Account, campaign or ad group.	General facts at account and campaign level, specific ones at ad group level.
4 Structured snippets	A predefined header and a list of values: Destinations: Hawaii, Costa Rica.	Choose a header (Brands, Courses, Styles, Types...), at least 3 values. Any level.	Account level first; at least 4 values a header; more than one set.
5 Call	A phone number on the ad. How Search gets calls: call ads can no longer be created.	Calls, the level, an existing number or a new one.	Show it only in business hours; count calls as conversions with call reporting.
6 Message	A button that opens a conversation: WhatsApp, SMS, Messenger and other apps.	Search and Performance Max; Advertiser verification; conversion bidding; a number or account for the app.	A starter message that fits the ad; no app name in the headline.
7 Lead form	A form inside the ad: people leave their details without visiting the site.	Headline, business name, description; questions; privacy policy; submission message; call to action. On Search, conversion bidding and a lead form goal.	On Search, usually better to let people fill in the form on your site.
8 Price	A scrollable row of products or services with prices: Haircut, Hair Coloring.	Type, currency, qualifier; each item: header and description (25 characters), price, URL. At least 3 items.	5 or more items; as specific as the keywords; link to the item; keep up to date.
9 App	A link to your app; the headline still goes to the site.	A live app on Google Play or the App Store; App, the level, the app, link text.	One asset per app store; only one app asset shows per ad.
10 Promotion	Sales and offers under the ad, up to two lines: Summer Sale, 20% off.	Occasion; monetary or percent discount; item; URL; code or minimum spend; dates.	Time it to holidays and events; schedule it; edit without losing data.
11 Image	A real, relevant picture beside the text ad.	Account open 60 days, good policy history, active campaigns, Search spend in the last 30 days. Square 1:1 required, landscape 1.91:1 recommended; up to 20; PNG or JPG; 5,120 KB.	4 or more unique, high-quality images, without text. Asset studio (Tools) can make and edit them.
12 Dynamic image	Google takes relevant images from your landing page.	An account-level automated asset setting: Campaigns, Assets.	Review what it picks.
13 Location	Address, map, distance and a call button: Clara's bakery.	Link a Business Profile, or add chain stores (Location manager, Tools).	Keep the address accurate; a call button for mobile.
14 Affiliate location	The nearest store that sells your product, for manufacturers.	Account level: choose the retail chains. One kind of location asset per account.	Use it when your products sit in chains you do not own.

Automated: Google can also add dynamic sitelinks, callouts and snippets, seller ratings, and a business name and logo from your site; review or switch them off under Campaigns, Assets. With AI Max on, text customisation writes extra headlines and descriptions from your ads and your page.
